“Preserving Benefits: An Introduction to Special Needs Trusts”

This webinar will provide a basic understanding of how special needs trusts work and how to maintain eligibility for government benefits for people with special needs.

Individuals with special needs are often entitled to receive certain benefits from the government. Often times these benefits are “needs-based,” which means the government determines eligibility based on the assets and income of the individual. If the person receiving benefits were to also receive an inheritance from a relative, it runs the risk of terminating those government benefits. This webinar will focus on how to use special needs trusts as a way of preserving the government benefits of an individual with special needs. It will also provide a brief overview of the types of benefits available to people with disabilities and special needs.

Speaker: Michael J. Drabant, Attorney at Law
